

THE CENTRAL RECORD.

THIRTY SECOND YEAR

LANCASTER, KY., THURSDAY AFTERNOON, NOVEMBER 17, 1921.

NUMBER 32.

DO NOT CENSURE YOUR NEIGHBOR

For Exercising The Right You Reserve To Yourself—To Vote As He Chooses.

Almost as sacred as the constitutional right to "Worship God in whatsoever manner your conscience dictates," is the constitutional right of suffrage. Every person has the right to vote just as they please, and it is not our province to censure for their manner of exercising that right.

Some people are what some choose to call "hide bound," that is they would vote for a "yaller dog" provided the dog was under the emblem of their particular party, and that is their right; some people draw party lines only in national races, or where party issues are involved, while others vote as their conscience may dictate, irrespective of party lines, and still others vote for the man, preferring to choose from among the candidates of both parties such men as they think will make the best officers. There are a great many people, who especially in county races, prefer to vote for those whom they consider their friends.

None of these various methods have we the right to censure or condemn. We must vouchsafe to everyone the right which we reserve to ourselves to vote just exactly as we choose.

Because a man, or a woman, belongs to "our lodge" or "our church," and we are a candidate for office, we are not of a necessity to expect that they will support us with their vote. Perhaps they deem someone else more fitted for the office to which we aspire, or perhaps the other claimant, in their estimation, has a stronger claim than we to their suffrage. Be that as it may, they had a perfect right, and no right did, vote as they pleased. Just as you had a right and did. And above all things do not allow politics to engender hard feelings or interfere with friendships, for politics is changeable and fleeting, and a strong friendship is not easily won and should not be lightly held.

Therefore, we say, do not cherish ill feelings toward your fellow lodger, or fellow churchman, or your neighbor or friend because he or she did not vote for your favorite candidate, but rather did just as you yourself, voted as they chose.

In most cases the defeated candidate is an old hand at the game, and takes his defeat philosophically, remembering that the time may come when he may desire to make another race, and the censuring of those who failed to vote for him in his late unsuccessful try will most assuredly not be of material benefit to him in the future.

The election is over. Let us forget it and all of us endeavor to hold up the hands of our new officers, and as good citizens assist them in the performance of their duties, to the end that they may make as good officers as those who we would have had in their stead.

Haselden Has Small Majority.

Joe S. Haselden, for State Senator, defeated Joe E. Robinson, the democratic nominee, by less than 75, out of a possible 30,000 or more votes. It was a close race and Mr. Robinson made a wonderful fight. The district went 1,400 republican last year and 700 the year before, when women did not indulge in the right of suffrage. Mr. Robinson issues a manly card in his paper, the Lancaster Record, accepting defeat and thanking those who supported him. It is unfortunate for this district that he was defeated, but once isn't always and twice is not forever. He will represent this district in the Senate yet, and may be a little later will be governor of the greatest of all States. We hope so, any way.—Interior Journal.

REPUBLICANS

Elect County Judge In Lincoln.

Lincoln county did herself proud in the recent election, electing the entire democratic ticket with the exception of county judge.

Judge T. A. Rice, who has served Lincoln most acceptably as county judge, was defeated by Ben D. Bell, republican.

HEIDAL SANFORD POST CELEBRATES

Two Ball Games In The Afternoon

MEMORIAL SERVICES AT NIGHT

Members of the Heidal Sanford Post American Legion celebrated Armistice celebration in Lancaster Friday with two big ball games and ended at the School Auditorium that night with memorial services in honor of the departed brothers who made the supreme sacrifice in the great World's War.

Starting promptly at 12:45 the Legionnaires of the County assembled on the Square, where they marched to the Leavell field, where they played the Paint Lick boys and defeated them by the score of 21 to 0.

The second game was followed immediately between the Lancaster High School team, who defeated the Lebanon Hi lads by the overwhelming score of 53 to 0.

Between the two games the girls ball team entertained the crowd.

Rev. L. N. Thompson delivered the address of the evening at the High School Auditorium. He paid high tribute to the service men and made a most excellent address.

The program consisted of several beautiful songs rendered by the girls' glee club of the High School, together with the Legion quartette.

Rev. Willie P. Rogers, Vice Commander opened and closed the meeting by prayer.

Attending I. O. O. F. Grand Lodge

Mr. George Smith, Jr. is in Mayville this week attending the Odd Fellows Grand Lodge as a representative from the local lodge. Mrs. Smith accompanied him for a visit to her old home.

Fox Hunters At Crab Orchard

The annual meeting of the Fox Hunters' Association is in session at Crab Orchard, the meet to last ten days. About two hundred are in attendance, with the largest number of dogs ever seen at a meeting. The weather is ideal and lovers of the chase from all directions are enjoying the meeting to the fullest extent.

First Time Home In Eighteen Years.

Mr. Allen O. Burnside, who was here last week for a short visit to his brothers, Messrs. J. A. and Jno. Burnside, has not visited the old home in eighteen years. He is located down to Louisville to buy in northern Indiana. He and his boss had run down to Louisville to buy "feeders" and took an extra day to run down here and see "Ginger" relatives.

Election Goes Off Quietly.

The above has become a common expression in Garrard county in late years, and the last election was no exception, there being not a fraction of any kind to mar the day.

We are sorry to note that other parts of the old Commonwealth were not so fortunate, "Bloody Breathitt," especially upholding her reputation, eight men killed and as many more wounded in election rows in that county.

Decorate For Armistice Day

Several of the merchants of the city had their windows decorated in American Legion colors last week for "Armistice Day." Joseph's and J. E. Dickerson and Sons were very attractive, the other merchants having flags and similar decorations keeping in touch with the day.

We are pleased to note that they are this week decorating in honor of the High School, and Josephs have some very attractive high school colors with a large white button with L. H. S. on same that they are selling at 25cts. each.

House Hunters Busy.

Just about this time of year the house hunter begins to get busy, seeking a domicile for the coming year. While there is no particular scarcity of dwellings for rent in Lancaster at present, yet the wary ones are seeking most suitable locations, and before the coming of the new year the search may become an animated one.

The Record Laboring Under Difficulties.

The Record force has been playing in hard luck the past few weeks. Manager Elkin, who is in Boston at the bedside of his wife, does not know positively when he will be able to return. During his absence, Mr. George Smith, who can always be depended upon to assist us in time of need, had the misfortune to severely sprain his ankle and was confined to his room for a week. Editor Robinson has been confined to his room with a severe cold. Thus the entire work has fallen upon the shoulders of the foreman, Mr. Len Miller. He however has been fully equal occasion and the Record has come out as regularly and in as good shape as if the entire force was up and working full time.

A Fitting Tribute

A handsome marble shaft has just been placed at the grave of Rev. George O. Barnes, the beloved Kentucky evangelist, whose memory is yet dear to the hearts of many Lancasters.

The memorial was erected by popular subscription, and was raised principally through the efforts of Ed. C. Walton, of Stanford, one of Bro. Barnes' warmest friends and admirers.

One of the greatest and most successful revivals ever held in Lancaster was the one conducted by Bro. Barnes, when the old court house was crowded at each meeting to hear his doctrine of "God is love," and to the strains of the little organ and the sweet voice of Miss Marie, many were converted.

As stated above everyone worked unceasingly to put this movement over, however, too much credit cannot be given Judge Lewis L. Walker, County Chairman, and Mr. J. M. Farra, who have neglected all of their business to devote their entire time to this, and it was their untiring efforts that has made this plan to work in Garrard, then too, the County precinct chairmen and their assistants, have worked and have given the matter much attention.

1,483 contracts were signed, making a total of 3,886,197 pounds or 82% per cent.

The list of those who signed since the last issue will be found on page ten of this issue.

Prices Fluctuate.

Mr. C. C. Barnett, the well known Buckeye pike farmer gives us the following illustrate of the difference in prices now and two years ago:

Two years ago Mr. Barnett had occasion to have new rubber tires put on his buggy; he paid for the work with ten bushels of corn and had one dollar balance left from what he received for the corn. This year he had occasion to have the same work done on the same buggy, but it took the proceeds of 30 bushels of corn, and left Mr. Barnett 50 cents in the hole.

Moral: Pool your tobacco, and you will doubtless be so pleased with the result that before your buggy again needs re-tiring you will have an opportunity to pool your corn, and the old two bushel price will return.

Some Mustard.

Mr. Luther B. Raney brought to the Record office, and it is now on exhibition in our window, a plant of the white curly mustard variety, which is indeed a "whopper." The plant is 3 feet tall and weighed 20 pounds, and would have made several "messes" for a large size family.

Mr. Aubrey Bourne and Mr. A. M. Marida brought in two of the largest turnips we have ever seen and the fine box of July Irish potatoes grown by S. J. Bourne would take the blue ribbon anywhere.

Notice.

Owing to the fact that the Record force is expecting an invitation out to eat Turkey with some of their friends, we ask that all correspondents have in their letters to reach us not later than Monday, and the merchants are asked to have their change of ads to be in the office at the same time.

The Record next week will be published on Wednesday. We ask that all of our readers do not speak at once, to ask us to eat Thanksgiving dinner, we will accept the first invitation.

GYMNASIUM

Needed At The L. H. S.

Building.

One of the most needed buildings now is a gymnasium that is badly needed at the Lancaster High School. We have all endorsed athletics in the schools and now as bad weather will soon be upon us and as the football season is rapidly coming to a close, basket ball will be the go. L. H. S. can have two good teams, and the only thing that we need is some place to practice and play. Let's get busy and put in some kind of a building to promote this great winter game in the school.

A Mid-Winter Fair.

The Mercer Chamber of Commerce is going to put on a big Mid-Winter Agricultural Fair in one of the large tobacco warehouses in Harrodsburg on December 3rd. The reason for holding the winter fair is that there are many farm products it is not practical to attempt to exhibit at the summer fair. The preliminary list shows classifications on the following items: Tobacco, corn, wheat, rye, oats, barley, hemp, pumpkins, kershaws, turnips, cabbage, Irish potatoes, butter, cream, flour, meal, and poultry. There will also be merchant's and manufacturers' display. Entries free to all. Admission free and free lunch will be served. All out of town tobacco entries must be in the day previous or by 8 A. M., morning of exhibit. Any county may enter competition as Mercer county wishes for her citizens to see the best products of the farm. The premium list already amounts to $1,000. The heaviest prizes are on tobacco and corn.

A big social event is being planned for the evening.

Revival At The Christian Church.

Revival services began at the Lancaster Christian Church last Sunday evening and will last through the 27th.

Rev. M. A. Hart, of Danville is preaching and is delivering some wonderful sermons, and is having large crowds.

Miss Kathryn Warriner, of Danville is directing the music and is adding much to the services.

Green.

Mr. Jas. A. Green, age 66, a prosperous farmer of Marcellus, died in a Lexington Hospital Wednesday from complication of diseases. Mr. Green was life long member of the Christian Church of Pleasant Grove, having united with the Christian church in his early boyhood days.

Mr. Green leaves three sisters, Miss Bettie Green and Mrs. Garrett Wood of this city and Mrs. Ellis Stone of Cincinnati, his wife having preceded him to the grave some two years ago.

His remains will be buried in Danville tomorrow (Friday) at 11 o'clock.

Meeting Temporarily Grows.

The "cottage prayer meetings," which the ladies of Lexington street have been conducting, have been temporarily suspended, through a spirit of cooperation with the revival services at the Christian church. The meetings will be resumed immediately after the revival closes, the first one to be held with Mrs. C. B. Bastin.

Sorry He Lost It.

John F. Walker, as good a democrat as ever stamped under the rooster, came all the way from Mississippi to cast his ballot under the party emblem, but his business affairs demanded his return even before he could ascertain the result of the election. However, defeat will not deter him, and the next election will find him making the same trip for the same purpose.

Striving To A Good End.

The Disarmament of Peace Congress is under good headway, and diplomatic representatives from all the countries holding membership are in attendance, and it seems that all are earnestly striving to the end that with the coming of Thanksgiving "Peace on earth, good will toward men" may have a deeper significance.

Baptist Church Notes

Next Sunday, November 20th, will be observed as Membership Day in the Baptist church, and it is earnestly requested that every member be in attendance at each of the services. Sunday School at 10:00 o'clock; preaching services and Communion at 11 o'clock. There will also be a Bible Study hour and business Session at 2:30 o'clock. The young people's services at 6:15. A cordial welcome extended to all.

LEBANON

SWAMPED

Coach Carrier's Men Are All Stars.

The Lebanon High School Foot Ball team journeyed to Lancaster last Friday afternoon and returned to their Marion County homes suffering with a 54 to 0 defeat at the hands of Capt. Cox and his string of warriors.

This game was a very much one sided affair and Coach Carrier in the last half formed an entire new team and shovved in all of his second string men to see how well they could perform under fire.

Touchdowns were made at will during the game and most every man displayed that he could be counted upon to advance the pig skin whenever called upon. The Captain attempted one drop kick during the game from the fifty yard line but the ball fell short by about 5 feet.

The following men played in Friday's game: Cox, (Capt.); W. Robinson, C.; Gastineau, Cochran, Sanders, Anderson, Lawson, G. Robinson, Crutchfield, Kavanagh, Elliott, Bratton, Stapp, V. Gastineau, H. Cox, Speaks, Brown, Haselden and Sanford.

State's Tobacco Yield Is Small

Estimated At 327,250,000 Pounds—

Quality Shows Improvement.

The preliminary estimate of Kentucky's tobacco crop is placed at 327,250,000 pounds by the United States Department of Agriculture, compared with a production last year of 467,500,000 and the ten-year average of 440,280,000 pounds, according to figures received recently from Washington.

The quality of the crop is estimated at 84 per cent as against last year. The yield an acre is placed at 850 pounds compared with a ten-year average of 858 pounds.

For the country as a whole the 1921 tobacco production is estimated at 1,020,874,000 pounds, compared with 1,502,064,000 last year and a ten-year average of 1,271,717,000.

The quality of the whole crop is 6 per cent under the average.

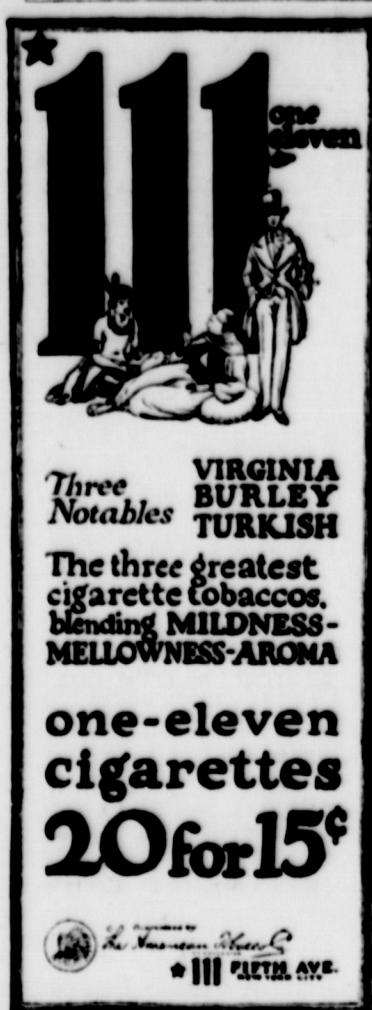

New Headquarters.

FOR CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

The Lancaster and Garrard County Chamber of Commerce have moved into their new rooms over the Puritan, formerly occupied by Dr. J. A. Amon.

The executive Secretary, Mr. Abbott will be found in his offices at all times and will be delighted to have you to drop in and see him.

The Commercial Club that has recently been organized in this county is now at work and within a short time we will let the people of the state know more about "The Land Of Now."

Nitrates From Explosives.

A plant has been established near Turin, Italy, for the transformation of explosives into nitrates for agricultural uses. These explosives are to be gathered from the battlefields to the value of 1,000,000 lire, and their products combined with other materials for the production of fertilizers. The factory now employs 250 men and is expected to produce 30,000 quintals of fertilizers, containing 15 per cent azote, within a short time, according to a report of Consul Danna C. Sykes.

SOUR MILK VERY USEFUL AS FOOD

Has Some Food It Originally Had Because It Is Source of Lime for Bone Building.

LACTIC ACID IS HEALTHFUL

Clabber is Relished as Refreshing and Wholesome by Many People, Especially if Served with Sugar and Sweet Cream.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

"Accidents will happen in the best-regulated families." In spite of the most careful protection from dust flies, or exposure to the sun, milk occasionally turns sour in the refrigerator during the hottest months. It may be that there is more left-over milk than usual, or that the ice supply is low, or that heat or thunder have affected the milk. Sour milk, nevertheless, has the same food value as it had originally, specialists in the United States Department of Agriculture say, because it is still a source of lime for bone building, of protein for tissue repair.

Lactic Acid Considered Healthful.

The bacteria which have caused souring are not necessarily harmful, if the milk was properly cared for, and the effect of those which caused the development of the lactic acid in the milk is thought by some to be beneficial. Many who cannot get buttermilk to drink like to churn thick, freshly soured milk with an egg beater till the curds are broken up into fine particles, and use it in the same way.

Clabber—the congealed, semiliquid state of fresh sour milk—is relished as refreshing and wholesome by many people, especially if served with sugar and sweet cream. The addition of maple syrup, honey, orange marmalade, or other preserves to clabber cream makes a delicious dessert. An excellent lent cake filling can be made of thick, sour cream, whipped and sweetened, with nuts added. Whipped sour cream is often added to mayonnaise salad dressing for fruit salads.

"Just One More Cookie, Grandma, Please."

No housewife needs to be told that good gingerbread can be made with sour milk, as well as corn breads of various kinds. In most recipes where sour milk is used as a leaven with soda, fewer eggs are called for. Very good pancakes and cornbread can be made with sour milk, omitting eggs entirely. Farmers' Bulletin 565, Corn Meal as a Food and Ways of Using It, gives no less than nine recipes calling for sour milk. Among them is this easy way of baking Boston Brown Bread:

Boston Brown Bread.

1 cupful corn meal, 1 teaspoonful salt, 1 cupful rye meal, 2 cupfuls molasses, 1 cupful graham, 2 cupfuls sour milk, flour, 1 egg, or 1 1/2 cupfuls sweet corn meal.

Mix and sift the dry ingredients and add the molasses and milk. Beat thoroughly and steam 3 1/2 hours in well-buttered, covered molds. One-pound baking powder tins are satisfactory. Remove the covers and bake the bread long enough to dry the top.

This may be made also with 1 1/2 cupfuls corn meal and rye meal and no molasses. A cupful of seeded and shredded raisins or prunes or a cupful of currants may be added.

This serves eight people.

If there is only a very little sour milk on hand, why not make some cookies? They may be made with corn meal. Oatmeal cookies are also excellent.

Corn-Meal Cookies.

1/2 cupful fat, 2 cupfuls corn meal, 1/2 cupful flour, 1/2 cupful molasses, 1/2 cupful soda, 1/2 cupful sugar, 1 egg.

Combine the melted fat, sugar, molasses, beaten egg, and sour milk. Sift together the corn meal, soda, and flour. Add the liquid ingredients to the dry ingredients. Drop from a teaspoon into a greased pan and bake 15 minutes in a moderate oven. This recipe makes 55 to 60 cookies 2 inches in diameter.

Sour milk or buttermilk and baking soda may frequently be substituted where the recipe calls for sweet milk. In place of one teaspoonful of baking powder a scant half teaspoonful of soda is used to each cupful of sour milk. Chocolate cake is particularly good when this substitution is made.

The Humble Clothespin.

Every Monday morning thousands of pulley lines squeak and thousands of clothespins are jabbed into place. In spite of many new inventions, people the world over still use the primitive wooden clothespin designed years ago by a New Hampshire man. Twenty million feet of timber are said to be needed each year to supply the clothespin manufacturers in the United States.

Origin of Wedding Cake.

The wedding cake dates back to the laws of Romulus and the early days of Rome. Instead of elaborate marriage festivals Romulus instituted the confratello. The union of the man and woman was solemnized simply and quickly by the eating of a loaf of barley bread together. This marriage ceremony was in force for some generations among the Romans. Then, as civilization developed, the barley bread became a cake.

Foot Ball Game

L. H. S. defeated Lebanon Hi last Friday by the score of 53 to 0. L. H. S. boys completely out classed the visitors. The work of Capt. Cox, Robinson, Gastineau, Lawson and Anderson were especially the features of the game. Lawson intercepted two good forward passes, racing for touchdowns. Cox and Robinson made some fine end runs, each scoring a touchdown for the local team.

Lancaster Legionaires defeated the Paint Lick Legionaires by the score of 20 to 0. All the players did good work in the game.

PEPTO-MANGAN KEEPS THE BLOOD PURE

Growing Children Need
Plenty Of Red Cells
In Blood.

When the young body is growing, children frequently experience weakness. Girls and boys sometimes play too hard and over-tax their systems. They become pale, weak, and sickly. They lose their appetites, become languid, and are not able to make progress in school work. "Growing too fast" is often true. It is most important to keep the blood of growing girls and boys in a healthy state.

Pepto-Mangan keeps the blood pure. The red cells in the blood are increased. They carry life-giving oxygen to all parts of the body, and wholesome youthfulness blooms again in clear complexions, bright eyes and buoyant spirits. Sold both in liquid and tablet form by druggists everywhere. The name "Gude's Pepto-Mangan" is on the package. Advertisement.

Glaciers are numerous about Prince William sound in Alaska. In one arm of the sound there are 11 within a range of nine miles, says the American Forestry Magazine. When the Harriman expedition explored the sound, the arm in which these glaciers occur was called "College fjord," and each glacier was given the name of some American institution of learning; the largest are known as "Yale" and "Harvard."

Reading and Thinking.
Those who have read of everything are thought to understand everything, too; but it is not always so. Reading furnishes the mind only with materials of knowledge; it is thinking that makes what is read ours. We are of the ruminating kind, and it is not enough to cram ourselves with a great load of collections; unless we chew them over again they will not give us strength and nourishment.—John Locke.

The Burden of a Name.
"Few great men's sons ever amount to much," said a man at the club the other evening. "I think the most striking reason for this I ever read," he continued, "was that given by the second duke of Wellington. Someone remarked to him: 'I cannot understand how it is that you, with your great interest in and knowledge of public affairs, have taken so little part in them.' 'Ah,' replied the duke, 'if you had sat so long under the shadow of a great tree, you would have been as colorless as I."

LATE VARIETIES OF FRUITS FOR DRYING

Apples Should Be Reasonably
Mature but Not Soft.

Care Should be Exercised in Picking and Handling to Avoid Bruising—
Get Peeled Product Into Evaporator Quickly.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Late winter varieties of apples and pears are best for drying because they are sweeter than the early varieties. Apples for drying should be reasonably mature but not soft, according to specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. Handle with care in picking and hauling so as to avoid bruising, as bruised spots become discolored and must be trimmed off to make an attractive product. Apples discolor rapidly. Preparations, therefore, must be made to get the product into the evaporator as rapidly as possible after it is pared. If a number of people are doing this work, this may be accomplished by dividing the paring, coring and spreading on trays, so that an apple spends only two or three minutes on the way from the paring knife to the drier.

If only one person is working, drop the pared fruit either into cold water or into a salt solution made by dissolving one tablespoonful of salt in four quarts of water. Do not allow the fruit to stand in the water any longer than is necessary, because the water will dissolve the sugar and other valuable elements and the apple will absorb water, which will necessitate longer drying in the evaporator. Carefully pare and trim the product to remove all discolored places. When a paring and coring machine is used, the apples, before being placed in it, should be worked over with a knife to remove all discolored spots.

Care should be taken when slicing by hand to make the slices as nearly the same thickness as possible. Three-sixteenths to one-fourth inch is the best thickness. Apples may be quartered or cut into eighths, but they do not dry so uniformly or so quickly as the sliced rings. The rings may be blanched in hot water or not as desired. Spread the rings in a single layer on trays and place either in the sun or in a warm drier. Apples when drying should be covered with muslin or mosquito netting to prevent insect infestation. A few minutes' exposure will often cause the products to be infested.

Dried apples that are brown or chocolate colored from the discoloration resulting from drying without blanching possess as high nutritive value and often have a better flavor than the more attractive-looking blanched products.

Dried apples will not be brittle when finished, but if a handful of the pieces are pressed together they will feel elastic and springy and will separate promptly when released, leaving no moisture on the hands. When one of the pieces is broken in two, it should not be possible to press moisture out of the center.

"I will never trust a friend again!"

It was a broad and bitter declaration for a man, young, ambitious, in love with life and all its pleasant promises and rewards to come; yet at that supreme moment of disappointment and loss, Lane Percival meant every word he spoke.

He stood in the room where he and Duke Vernon had spent many a hopeful, happy hour during the past year. They had been like brothers. Each had come to the city from a country home to carve a way to fortune. To one of them, Lane Percival, had come as well the glory of youth—love, deep tranquill, abiding. Even in that the faithful Vernon seemed to share his joy and take Myra Little to his heart's thoughts as a cherished sister.

And now—this! An opened disordered drawer in the bureau, an overturned box with its strong lock broken—and empty. Two days before it had contained $100, the savings of two years. Percival had got leave of absence for a day to escort Myra to a town forty miles away, where she was to spend a week with an old school friend, and he had returned to find Duke Vernon faithless.

"He has taken it all," muttered Percival, dark brows, and his heart for the moment was filled with cruel hate.

That night he wrote all the truth to Myra, with a heavy heart telling her that he must begin all over again, and they must—walt!

"I guess it is my fate to meet with disappointment in my friends," he wrote Myra. "Next time I shall make you my banquet, and shut out from my life every bit of human love except for you."

"A telegram, sir," announced a messenger boy, just as Percival was sealing up this letter.

In wonder Lane Percival read a brief message. It was dated at a point in Michigan and it was signed Duke Vernon. It ran:

"Better than I left you word. We have made it."

What word—made what? In bewilderment Lane Percival sought valiant to read the riddle.

He slept a little towards morning. He arose dull and oppressed and bothered. There was a knock at the door.

"Come in," he directed.

"It's me," announced the man who cleaned the halls and washed the windows and kept the place generally in order. "I found a letter, and a check I guess it is, in the court just now. I'm not much of a scholar but I spelled out your name."

"My name?" repeated Percival vaguely.

"There they are," and the man handed Percival a sheet of paper and a check.

The letter was made out for $400 and signed by the missing Vernon.

The letter bore the initials of the same signature, and ran:

"Dear Lane:

"I have a hasty call for funds ready cash. Urgent. A big thing. I have taken your money and leave you check. Expect great news."

Slowly the truth began to dawn on the startled Percival.

There was another summons at the door of his humble room the next evening.

He flung the door open widely. Then he drew back. The open happy face, the blithely tone of his friend, returned, were a reproach that made him shrink from the extended hand.

"I can't do it, Duke," he said. "I have wronged you."

"Wronged me?" rang out the cheery tones of Vernon. "When? How?"

"I believed you had stolen my money."

"I'd have done it if there had been no other way," cried Duke Vernon. "I've made it. No more scraping and saving and creeping along. Look there!"

He drew forth and flung before the eyes of his bewildered friend a certified check.

"Ten thousand dollars!" were the words that dazzled the eyes of the astonished Percival.

"See who it's made out to."

"Duke Vernon and Rupert Percival; my brother."

"Yes—the ne'er-do-well, the wild rover, the poor fellow you lost faith in. But I had faith. He was all good, only impulsive and easily influenced. He lost your money and his in an out and out swindle. But that was education. I didn't tell you, but for a year I have been staking him, off and on, up in the copper mining district—as a partner. You wouldn't see him a year ago when he called here," said Vernon. "He's made good—won't you see him now?"

"Yes," said Lane Percival humbly, "and ask you both to forgive a man who needs to begin the study of human nature all over again, to make himself worthy of being called friend and brother."

And Vernon went out and brought the wanderer back with him. It did not take long, even after his abject confessions, for Duke and Rupert to cheer up their repentant companion.

And they spent that evening in planning what a lot the $10,000, received for a claim that the $400 had come just in time to secure, would do for three young, ambitious fellows and the bonny girl who need not now wait longer for Lane's start in life.

The letter was made out for $400 and signed by the missing Vernon.

The letter bore the initials of the same signature, and ran:

"Dear Lane:

"I have a hasty call for funds ready cash. Urgent. A big thing. I have taken your money and leave you check. Expect great news."

Slowly the truth began to dawn on the startled Percival.

There was another summons at the door of his humble room the next evening.

He flung the door open widely. Then he drew back. The open happy face, the blithely tone of his friend, returned, were a reproach that made him shrink from the extended hand.

"I can't do it, Duke," he said. "I have wronged you."

"Wronged me?" rang out the cheery tones of Vernon. "When? How?"

"I believed you had stolen my money."

"I'd have done it if there had been no other way," cried Duke Vernon. "I've made it. No more scraping and saving and creeping along. Look there!"

He drew forth and flung before the eyes of his bewildered friend a certified check.

"Ten thousand dollars!" were the words that dazzled the eyes of the astonished Percival.

"See who it's made out to."

"Duke Vernon and Rupert Percival; my brother."

"Yes—the ne'er-do-well, the wild rover, the poor fellow you lost faith in. But I had faith. He was all good, only impulsive and easily influenced. He lost your money and his in an out and out swindle. But that was education. I didn't tell you, but for a year I have been staking him, off and on, up in the copper mining district—as a partner. You wouldn't see him a year ago when he called here," said Vernon. "He's made good—won't you see him now?"

The Two Amendments.

We do not the least bit regret the defeat of the two amendments. Our objection was not based upon the idea that amendments were smoke screened plans of partisan politicians, through the success of which it was hoped to organize a political machine. Although judging from the workings in this county of the last school law enacted by the republican administration, by which the local republican machine seized upon its provisions, and turned the schools in this country from a non partisan state into an auxiliary republican organization, this being common knowledge, causes us to have some misgivings as to the purposes behind the proposed defeated amendments.

We are heartily in favor of any and all plans which fairly promise to give us better schools in this state. We have in the past years had a school system that did not meet the requirements. The past generation has been poorly educated. Our poor school system in days of old, has produced lamentable and unhappy conditions. But there has been wonderful progress in the past fifteen years. We should not permit the purpose to mend the mistakes of a former generation to lead astray from the paths of reason.

Amendment I assumed that an appointed body or a centralized appointive head would more wisely select the school leadership for Kentucky. In this we do not agree. Let the people select the head of the schools of the state.

Those who are interested in better schools, be active in presenting the merits of those who would serve to direct the school systems and the people.

will elect them. Our schools will continue to improve, and will soon be adequate to meet the demands of the day. We want to do our part to keep step with the spirit of the times for better schools.

Let Us Give Thanks.

Thursday, November 24, has been designated by the ruler of our country as the day upon which we are to give thanks to the Ruler of the Universe—the Maker and the Giver of all things.

We will go to church, eat our turkey, and spend a day free from the cares of life.

The fires in our homes will burn brightly, and the joy in our hearts will be supreme.

But why will it be so?

How many of us will give serious thought to those incomparable blessings for which we should render our profound and grateful homage to Deity?

We live in a land of peace and plenty, yet the world around us is torn, and bleeding, and no bended knees of supplication, earnestly pleading for the commercial and political restoration that means life and liberty to them.

We have health and happiness, while many other nations of the earth are bowed under the weight of distress and hunger, and are groaning in the depths of despair.

We have education and enlightenment, while millions in other lands are growing to maturity under the blight of ignorance and superstition.

Peace and plenty—health and happiness—education and enlightenment!

What more could mortal Christian desire?

With all of these we have been abundantly endowed by the Creator of the heavens and the earth.

It is because of His great love for us that He bestows these wonderful blessings upon us.

A life of love and veneration would be slight recompense for even one of these precious gifts.

As we receive, so should we bestow.

Let us give thanks.

Little Thoughts

On Big Topics.

Why is so many public officials think invariably of self and so seldom of the public welfare?

That question has been asked by millions of people many millions of times, yet the answer is simple.

Our political system creates politicians instead of statesmen, men who too often exploit the offices they hold for their own and their party's welfare instead of administering them for the ultimate good of all. This is made possible only in one way. In the heat of a campaign the politician turns heaven and earth in an effort to get every one of his ilk to the polls to vote, and the invariably succeeds. The clean minded citizen has been fed upon exploitation until he remains away from the polls in sheer disgust, feeling that it is little better than a waste of time to choose between two evils—handpicked candidates of the two great parties. Then again, there are others who apparently think less of the public welfare than they do of losing the few hours required to vote. Thus the spoilsman often wins.

If every man and woman in America who believes in placing men of high character and integrity in public office would go to the trouble of voting the spoilsman would soon cease to be a menace.

There is no question but what the great majority of our people want good men in public positions, but it is a far cry from wanting them there and going to the polls and placing them there.

What, then, is the remedy? Compulsory voting!

The man or woman who enjoys the right of franchise and is not patriotic enough to exercise that right by voting should be compelled by law to do so.

How could such a law be enforced? Again it is very simple.

Let the penalty for failure to vote be the loss of franchise if the person is without property, and without legitimate excuse, or an increase of 25 per cent in his assessment, if a tax payer.

The man or woman who is in the habit of voting could have no valid objection to such a law. Others need it in order to jar them into realizing the responsibility of citizenship.

We of America have received, welcomed and honored Ferdinand Foch, marshal of France, most illustrious general of his time, and rival of Napoleon Bonaparte and Alexander the Great.

He is the greatest soldier on earth today, and now he has seen the greatest country of the earth. But seeing is not understanding. The famous marshal has much yet to learn about America, and of her people, and of their habits and customs. And without this knowledge there can be no correct understanding.

France should send also her keenest minds of the commercial world to our country, men who will investigate and appreciate the methods by which we have sprung from an infant nation to a position of commanding power among the peoples of the world, and that within a few short years of time.

It would serve to remove the feeling of suspicion and antagonism which many of the French entertain toward us, and which is felt to a certain extent in this country toward the people of France.

We do not understand the French, and the French do not understand us. That was clearly demonstrated when our troops came in contact with them during the world war. It left anything but the friendly feeling both nations could desire.

Great generals win battles and save countries when their people are at war, but it requires the keen vision of the productive genius to maintain a nation on a prosperous plane in time of peace.

The two great republics of the earth should have a closer understanding, both politically and commercially. Each has much to learn from the other. Both would materially benefit from the contact.

Let the thrice welcome visit of the victor in the war be followed by others from victors in the realm of peace.

We need it, the French need it, and neither France nor America has anything to lose from a broader knowledge and understanding of the other.

As The Editor Sees It.

The Japanese ambassador at Washington is refreshingly frank and to the point. He suggests that the American and Japanese could come to a better understanding if the practice of backbiting could be eliminated.

Possibly he is right, but we imagine his remarks would be applicable to Japan as well as to this country.

Nations and people have a right to express their opinions in a straight forward and manly way, and it is not to be expected that they will always agree. But backbiting is conducive to friction and trouble. No good ever comes from it.

If we don't want our women to marry Japanese men that is our business. If the Japanese don't want our men to marry their women, that is their business. Neither has a right to object, although we understand that is one of the reasons the Japanese have for their feeling of resentment toward us.

Our cards are on the table, gentlemen of Nippon. Put yours there and we will have less cause for future trouble.

Our national capitol is overflowing with the keenest minds of the nations of the earth, sent by their governments to advise with the delegates to the disarmament conference.

When the conference ends it would be well if each of these specialists could make a tour of this country and study closely our American methods of doing business.

All of the wisdom of the world of commerce is not centered in the countries across the water. The fact that America has grown from an infant to a giant within a short time would indicate that at least a portion of that wisdom is to be found in this land of freedom and progress. Europe might benefit by absorbing some of it. Certainly we would benefit from so close a contact with the wise men of other nations.

Then there is another side to the subject.

Foreign countries have reduced the cultivation of the soil and the practice of economy to a science. In this we have much to learn from them, knowledge that would be of inestimable value to us.

We of America are inordinately extravagant and criminally wasteful, while the average European or Asiatic is just the reverse.

We might well take many lessons from them in the development of agriculture and the practice of economy.

A closer interchange of ideas and thoughts would be beneficial to the peoples of both the old and the new worlds.

Hold onto your liberty bonds. Don't let anyone cajole you into selling them for less than par. They are slowly but surely rising in value, and after the high rates of interest come down the bonds will shoot up again in value.

In the Earth's Interior.

From the evidence available, R. D. Oldman traces three divisions in the earth's interior. The solid outer crust, with a thickness of $\frac{1}{2}$ to 1 per cent of the radius (or twenty to forty miles), has high permanent rigidity, but from unknown causes has been subject to deformations, with displacements of as much as ten miles vertically and 100 horizontally.

Robin Hood's Proper Name.

The proper name of Robin Hood was Robert Fitzooth. The first he was given, and the second Hood, omitting the Fitz, which is Norman for son (modern French being "his"), since having been declared an outlaw, he was not unwilling to renounce his claims to Norman descent. That he was really the earl of Huntington, as some historians assert, cannot be proved.

Suspended Animation.

Insects which spend most of their lives in a torpid or semi-torpid condition are seldom injured and never killed by being frozen. There are numerous instances of travelers in mountain regions having found beetles and butterflies above the snow line which were stiff, frozen and apparently dead. When carried down to the warmer air in the valley, however, they revived in a very short time.

Valuable Ideas From Dreams.

I often think that many of the most valuable things we know are learned by chance or by men the world supposed to be dreamers. It took lazy old Ike Newton, sprawled luxuriously under the apple tree, to discover the laws of motion as the apples dropped from the wind-shaken boughs. And the story of the boy watching the tea kettle with the white giant inside, but emphasizing the fact that keen observation and dreaming may be two entirely different things.—The County Agent, in Farm Life.

When Art Failed.

This is a true story of an adventure of two lady artists in Sunny Spain. They were walking and arrived at a little country inn, hot, dusty and thirsty. They couldn't talk Spanish, but wanted some milk badly, so one of them drew a most beautiful high-bred cow, while the other jingled some coins. The Spaniards looked and a boy was sent off post haste. In half an hour the boy returned, hot and triumphant—with two tickets for a bullfight.—From the London Town Topics.

Roof of Washington's Home.

The wood shingle roof on George Washington's home at Mount Vernon was repaired by him in 1785 and was not again repaired until 1809—a life of 75 years, says the American Forestry Magazine of Washington. There have been many instances found where shingle roofs have lasted satisfactorily for 50 years and even 100 years. It is not at all unreasonable to attribute such a lifetime to cedar when we consider that the old sarcophagi in which some of the Egyptian kings were buried 3,000 years ago are still found in fairly good condition.

DEMOCRATS OF KENTUCKY

Are To Meet For A Big Day And Talk Over Party Affairs

Copy Of Official Call Issued By The Democratic State Central And Executive Committee.

My dear sir:

In line with the policy adopted by the Democratic State Central and Executive Committee of a square deal for the citizen voters of Kentucky and within the limitations of the authority vested in me as Chairman of the Committees and the authority of the Committees, you are hereby requested and called to meet at the Seelbach Hotel on the 30th day of November, at two o'clock P. M., for a conference.

We have no more authority than was given us by the Convention from which we derive our powers and which created us, wherefore we can not properly announce new principles or policies, nor can we without usurpation of authority determine the application of any principle already declared for in party platform to any given condition, and thus bind our Democratic legislators. We can, however, confer upon the abuses of power and failure of the present administration at Frankfort to keep faith with the people, and how these abuses and failures should be met and remedied by the Democratic control of the House and Senate. This the people of the State have demanded by an overwhelming vote in the last election.

We can and should organize and direct together with our Democratic representatives an effort, towards an honest program looking to the enlightened constructive and united handling of party authority in legislative work. This can best be done by a joint conference of our committee, the Democratic members of the Legislature, our Representatives in the United States Congress and Senate, and leading Democrats over the State.

We should attend such a conference with open minds unpledged and unembarrassed by any previous agreement, secret influence or private control. We should at once lift our party above the reproach of the propagandist who would break the faith of the citizens by the insidious suggestions of malign influences or unworthy obligations.

The eyes of the country are upon us. The problems that confront the State have been generously intrusted to us in the majorities of both Houses of the Legislature. We are expected to work to the future of our State in the interest of all the people regardless of party. This should be done with clean hands and we should hold them up where they can be seen. Wherefore this call for the purposes herein indicated.

Very sincerely yours,
(Signed) Chas. A. Hardin,
Chairman.

Exercise Important For Pregnant Sheep.

Daily exercises for the pregnant ewe fills an important place in keeping up the circulation of blood and in putting the digestive tract in the best condition and for these reasons should not be overlooked if the flock is to be successfully managed during that period, according to sheep specialists. Forced exercises may be necessary at times when ewes will not take it of their own accord but care should be practiced at all times to see that violent exertion is avoided.

One of the best ways to induce the animals to take exercise is to scatter roughage over the ground at some distance from the shelter of the ewes so that they will be compelled to walk to it. Corn stover set in a shock serves well for this purpose and provides feed for the animals with a small amount of waste, according to L. J. Horlacher, in charge of the sheep husbandry at the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station.

In some cases exercises for the ewes may be obtained by driving them at a moderate pace for about fifteen minutes each day. However, some ewes are too heavy to be driven without injury to themselves and for this reason this means is not always advisable. Driving the animals through deep, stiff mud is apt to prove harmful. In order to avoid violent exercises care should be taken to see that dogs are not allowed to chase the sheep. They should not be allowed to jump over obstacles or to crowd through narrow doors.

Henderson County Farmer Starts Important Fertility Test.

D. K. Stimson, a Henderson county farmer who is cooperating with County Agent D. W. Martin and the extension division of the College of Agriculture has just started a fertilizer demonstration on his farm which is expected to answer many important questions of soil fertility for farmers of that community, according to a report from the county. Mr. Stimson will use different plots and make separate and combined tests of acid phosphate at the rate of 200 to 400 pounds an acre, rock phosphate at the rate of 1,000 to 2,000 pounds an acre, limestone at the rate of one to two tons an acre and farm manure at the rate of five to ten tons an acre.

was started this fall.

The farmer growing and delivering the largest amount of wheat will receive the five barrels of flour. The farmers who produce the most bushels of wheat an acre on five acres or more will receive $25.00. A similar prize will be given to the farmer who produces wheat at the least cost a bushel on five acres or more.

900 Livingston Farmers Attend Community Meets.

Livingston county farmers are using community meetings to a good advantage in solving the various problems of their farm community schools recently held under the direction of County Agent L. C. Pace. More than 900 farmers attended the eight meetings which are held in different communities of the county.

Livestock and soils and crops subjects were the principal ones discussed by the farmers. R. C. Miller, sheep extension specialist from the College of Agriculture and R. E. Stephenson, soils and crops specialist of the college, gave short talks on these phases of farming after which they led discussions by the farmers on problems connected with these subjects in the county.

PLAN LIVESTOCK

U. S. Co-operative Marketing Association Is Decided Upon At Meeting.

Chicago, (Associated Press)—Livestock producers gathered here recently, adopted the plan for a national co-operative marketing system, prepared by a committee of fifteen appointed by J. R. Howard, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation.

The plan according to Mr. Howard, sets up farmer-owned and controlled livestock commission houses at the stockyards; provides a plan for orderly marketing so as to prevent gluts on the market and the consequent sharp decline in price; and represents the natural development of the co-operative livestock shipping association movement.

The scheme is the second co-operative movement launched by the Farm Bureau Federation. Another committee of fifteen last spring laid down plans for a national grain marketing system which materialized in the United States Grain Growers, incorporated. Unlike the grain plan, however, the livestock scheme does not call for pools or long period contracts.

The existing co-operative livestock commission companies are to be supported, a programme of orderly marketing worked out, a transportation department created, livestock statistics interpreted and the public is to be educated to understand the advantage of meat as a food.

The committee of fifteen which prepared the plan included Harry G. Beale, Mount Sterling, Ohio; Howard M. Core, Clarksburg, Va.; and J. R. Skinner, Lafayette, Ind.

VEGETABLES NEED CLEANING

Spiced Vinegar Is Frequently Valuable for Pickling—Herbs Useful for Garnish.

Spiced vinegar is used in making pickles, for flavoring gravies, potato salad, and similar dishes. For pickling it is especially valuable, as the flavor from spiced vinegar is the same all through the pickles, while if pepper, cloves, and dill are added directly to the pickles the flavor is more concentrated at the places where these spices are put. The herbs from which the spiced vinegar is made may be used as a garnish by mixing them in the pickle.

An excellent spiced vinegar is made by filling a wide-mouthed bottle or a fruit jar to within two inches of the top with spiced plants of different kinds, such as slices of horse radish and onions, umbels of dill, ripe seed of white mustard and celery, green seed of nasturtiums, fine stems and leaves of tarragon, basil, and sweet marjoram. A pod of red pepper may also be added. The bottle or jar is then filled with vinegar, heated to 160 degrees F., corked or sealed and left for about three weeks. At the end of the three weeks, strain the vinegar and fill in small bottles. Cork and seal with melted paraffin or sealing wax.

MUCH BENEFIT FROM FRUITS

They Supply Acids and Are Important for Their Flavor and Other Good Reasons.

Fruits are very important in the child's diet. They supply mild acids, and they are important for their flavor, for their laxative effects, and no doubt for other reasons. This laxative effect is well recognized in the very general use of prunes, orange juice, and apples. Fruits, like the vegetables, have mineral elements which the body requires. Serve fruits in some form at least once a day.

CHEESE MAKING OFFERS MEANS OF UTILIZING SURPLUS MILK

Simple Equipment for Making Cheddar Cheese at Home.

Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.

American or Cheddar type cheese is palatable, rich in food value, and it may be kept for long periods without refrigeration. Every housewife knows of a number of palatable dishes made from cheese which serve as a change in the ordinary diet. As it may be made at any time of the year where there is a surplus of milk, cheese making offers an exceptionally advantageous means of conserving for later use milk which might otherwise be wasted, suggest specialists in the United States Department of Agriculture.

Approximately five or six hours are required from the time the milk is placed in the vat for heating until the cheese is put into the hoop for final pressing, and during that time it is not necessary for the operator to give it his entire attention. From this point until the end of two weeks only a few minutes each day are required to turn the cheese. After that time the cheese is turned only twice a week until fully cured. Best results have been obtained in regions where the nights are cool throughout the summer and where cool water may be obtained.

Approximately 10½ pounds of cheese are obtained from 100 pounds, or 11 2/3 gallons, of milk containing 4 per cent butter fat. It is important to have fresh, clean, whole milk for cheese-making. If milk is to be kept overnight it should be cooled to a temperature of 60 degrees F. or lower, and held at that temperature until used. The milk should not be held more than twelve hours, as it is very important that it be perfectly sweet.

A wash boiler, large kettle or tub may be used for cheese-making, but if cheese is to be made frequently a regular cheese vat is more satisfactory. A cheese vat is so constructed that hot or cold water may be circulated around the milk for regulating the temperature. Control of temperature throughout the manufacturing process is essential. A good thermometer, therefore, should be used. The milk is heated in the vat or wash boiler to a temperature of 86 degrees F., at which it is held until after the curd has been cut.

Rennet to Curdle the Milk.

Cheese made without the addition of coloring matter is light yellow or straw color; if a deeper shade of yellow is desired a small quantity of coloring is put in the milk. Regular cheese color should be used, and not butter color, as the latter colors the Much Care Should Be Exercised Whether Served Raw or Cooked—Use Brush on Potatoes.

Wash all vegetables with great care whether served raw or cooked. Scrub large vegetables, such as potatoes and carrots with a brush. Greens should be washed leaf by leaf under running water, or in a large amount of water, until free from grit and visible dirt. In the latter case, any sand which clings to them is likely to sink. To prevent it from again getting on the vegetables lift them from the water instead of pouring the water off.

The sweetened omelet is often used as a dessert.

All canned meats and fish should be removed from the cans as soon as opened.

Try putting a piece of camphor ice away with your silver. It keeps it from tarnishing.

Take a strip of adhesive plaster write name and address in ink, and stick inside of your umbrella.

Put a little sand in the bottom of Chinese lanterns and they will not sway and will be less apt to take fire.

To cool food quickly fill the lower part of a double boiler with ice or cold water and place food in the upper part

Cheap Feeds Required
If Horse Holds Place.

If the horse is to maintain his place on the farm in competition with motor-driven power he must be kept through the winter on an economical ration which will bring him through that season of the year as cheaply as possible and at the same time prepare him for the rush of spring work, specialists on horse feeding say. This system of feeding requires the economical use of all cheap feeds and roughages on the farm in such a way as to make a balanced ration, according to W. S. Anderson, a member of the animal husbandry department of the College of Agriculture. However, horses and mules that are in harness during the winter must have a larger grain ration than those which are doing little or no work, the specialists say.

Work stock may be carried thru the winter cheaply by making use of as much corn stover, oats straw, and weedy hay as possible. If sheep oats has been stored on the farm this will answer the purposes of a grain ration and provide much of the roughage needed by the animals provided they are not moldy. The cheaper hays can be fed to horses since the animals will pick the hay out of the weeds and briars and leave the inedible parts.

If oats has not been raised on the farm to provide a grain ration for the stock the cheapest grain this year will be corn, according to Prof. Anderson. However, work stock does not need a full grain ration during idle days of winter. If pasture is available the work stock may be allowed to run on it at least part of the time each day for the sake of exercise. Frequently, if the weather is mild a small amount of grain fed on pasture with corn stover or some cheap hay is all that is needed. Stock should be allowed the use of the barn or shed when the ground is covered with snow or the weather becomes severe.

It is feeding to have the animals come through the winter in the best shape possible it is not necessary that they be excessively fat but they should be in better flesh in the spring than in the previous fall when they finished their work. As spring approaches the condition of the work stock must be examined and if necessary more grain added to the ration to improve the condition of the horses and mules.

Commonwealth Of Kentucky
A PROCLAMATION.

To the People of Kentucky, Greetings:

Every boy in the common schools of Kentucky, and for that matter, every girl, should join the Junior Agricultural Club.

Know the soil on which you live; know the joy of producing from that soil. Learn the independence which comes from contact with the soil when it produces wealth; learn to know nature as it is made to yield, everything which gives and sustains life; learn at last that character is built in God's clean out-of-doors. All of this, and more, comes and will come to you from real active membership in the Junior Agricultural Club of Kentucky. Therefore, I designate the week of November 14-19, inclusive, as Junior Club Enrollment Week in Kentucky.

Given under my hand as Governor of the Commonwealth, this 31st, day of October, 1921.

(Signed) Edwin P. Morrow,
Governor.

Tubers Are Matured When Vines Begin to Drop Off.

Care Should Be Taken to Avoid Spearing or Cutting Them—Store in (Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Potatoes require 90 to 100 days after planting before any will be ready for use. The tubers are not fully matured until after the vines die, or at least ripen and shed most of their foliage.

Late potatoes in the Northern and Northeastern states are frequently caught by frost before the vines ripen, so should be dug just about the time frost first strikes them. Potatoes should be dug when the soil is reasonably dry, so that it will not adhere to them. A spading fork or a potato hook is best for digging them and great care should be taken to avoid spearing or cutting them in digging. Only a small quantity should be turned out at once, as they will become sunburned if exposed more than an hour or two.

Store potatoes in a cool, dry place where they will get plenty of ventilation and be in the dark. Potatoes must not be allowed to freeze either before they are dug or while in storage.

A good, cool, well-ventilated cellar or storm cellar forms a suitable storage place for potatoes and under proper conditions will keep through the winter and into the early summer.

Another method is to bury the potatoes in a pit outdoors and cover them so that frost cannot get to them.

SOME EGG SHIPPING 'DON'TS'

Department of Agriculture Offers Few Practical Hints for Benefit of Poultrymen.

Here are some "don'ts" offered by the United States Department of Agriculture that many times mean the difference between a loss or a profit in shipping carload eggs:

Don't waste time and labor by using cheap cases; time and labor are precious.

Don't save pennies by buying poor fillers and flats when you lose dollars in broken eggs. The saving of one egg would pay for the extra cost of a set of No. 1 fillers.

Don't nail braces to sides of car against an incomplete top layer; they seldom hold in place and often are the cause of damage. They injure the efficiency of the car insulation. The use of small under-case braces will prevent all of this.

Don't waste ice and refrigeration by stowing the load so as to make air circulation in the car impossible.

Don't tie up your money in freight claims because of a loose load. Tie up the load and leave the money loose to work again.

IMPERFECTIONS IN CLOVER SEED

In Recent Purchase North Carolina Farmer Finds Weed Seeds of Various Kinds.

A farmer in Rowan county, N. C., was about to purchase some clover seed last spring from one of his neighbors, preparatory to sowing down his wheat acreage. He noticed that the seed was somewhat impure, and was reminded of the warnings so frequently given by the county agent in respect to pure seed. He asked to have a small sample tested for purity by the state seed laboratory at Raleigh. The sample was reported on merely as "No. 9." Each pound was found to contain approximately 65,000 buck horn seeds, 2,282 dodder, 2,622 wild carrot, 2,208 black-seeded plantain, 411 curled dock, 276 Venus flytrap, 138 each of erg grass and green foxtail—a total of 83,140 weed seeds in each pound. This would, no doubt, be sufficient to seed the man's land to these pests for the next decade.

Although this sample was the worst of any tested through the county agent's office, on casual inspection it indicated only ordinary impurities. A laboratory test is a safe check even on the purest farm seeds.

But You Must Clear Your Blood of Waste Products.

Lack of exercise and improper diet causes waste products to accumulate in the blood. You will at once realize that unless the blood is pure, some part of the body will become diseased.

Rheumatism, with its pain and agony, is one of the most serious diseases caused by waste products in the blood. You know, of course, the blood is not confined alone to the arteries and veins. It passes out of these channels to all parts of the body. This is how sediments or waste products are deposited in the muscles and joints. Genuine relief can be had only by correcting the basic trouble—waste products.

Thousands and thousands of men and women during the past 50 years have cleared their blood of waste products with S. S. S. Is the Earth Drying Up?

Whether the globe on which we dwell is gradually drying up or not is a question that has been much debated. Recent discoveries in central Asia have been regarded by some as favoring an affirmative answer, but others have repudiated that the observed phenomena are simply periodic changes. One authority champions the affirmative view on the ground that a great number of European lakes have certainly disappeared within the last 250 years.

Salts Have Taken Place Of Green Feed For Hens.

Green feeds such as sprouted oats, mangel beets, silage and cabbage which for some time have been advocated as important winter feeds in an annual loss of approximately three-fourths of the farm manure for hens may be successfully replaced by epsom salts placed in the drinking water of the birds, according to J. H. Martin, in charge of poultry work at the College of Agriculture. Use of this material accomplished the same results as the feeding of green foods and did it with less expense and trouble, according to results of trials cited by Mr. Martin.

Use of green feed in the winter is dropped on pastures and in the open ration of the hens only serves to feed where cattle are fed and is to keep the digestive tract in the proper condition and does not increase the egg production of the birds, according to results obtained in feeding proper care of this important farm fertilizer affords farmers of the State a splendid opportunity for increasing their profits, according to Mr. Stephenson.

The greatest manure loss results from the fact that few farmers make sufficient effort to save the manure and spread it on the fields where crops are produced. Large amounts of it are allowed to accumulate around the barnyard and strawstack and in other places. Since the most efficient place to save the manure is on a field which is producing a crop best results will be obtained by hauling and spreading it as often as possible. When manure cannot be spread as rapidly as it accumulates a special constructed manure pit or silo will be found helpful in conserving the plant food which it contains.

Leaching is another one of the channels through which farm manure is wasted, much of the material becoming inferior in quality because of the loss of liquid matter. This liquid constitutes one-half the value of the manure and in order to properly save it farmers should prepare tight floors of clay or concrete and then use large amounts of bedding. When stock are loose in the stall some of the bedding will be consumed as feed and the remainder tramped into the manure to absorb the liquid portion.

Heating or fire-fanging which results when manure is piled in loose heaps also results in losses of the farm fertilizer. The heated manure gives off ammonia which carries with it large amounts of valuable nitrogen. This loss may be prevented by allowing the stock to tramp the manure so that it will be compact and by keeping it moist until it is spread on the field.

Air that has been exhaled contains about seventy per cent of the suspended dust particles it contained when it was breathed, tests made in London show.

Times for Gratitude.
There is much greatness of mind in the owning of a good turn as in the doing of it, and we must no more force a regal out of season than he wanting in it.—Senecon.

Chief Thing in Life.
There are days in life worth life and worth death. And oh, what a bright old song it is that goes, "Tis love, 'tis love, 'tis love that makes the world go round." Dickens

Men With Small Feet.

It has been discovered that men with small feet are those who are fondest of amusements. They do not, according to science, make the best husbands. Men with larger feet appear to measure up better.

Veteran Tortoise Still Lives.

A tortoise belonging to a South African museum, which died in 1920, had been under observation since 1834, when it was already of gigantic size and of unknown age. A female tortoise belonging to the same museum has been known since 1843. It still lays eggs.

Steel-Head Trout.

The steel-head trout is classed as a salmon by fisherfolk and the fishing trade, and it is said that it was named "steel-head" because of the hardness of its skull. Fishermen tell that it often requires several blows from a club to kill this fish when captured and taken into a boat.

Chinese Like Ulsters.

Ulster overcoats have become popular with the Chinese in Manchuria. The wealthier class of Chinese always wear long outer garments of silk, which are easily damaged by rain or snow, and the long ulster, besides affording warmth, protects the silk clothing underneath.

Dimples Tissue Defects.

A dimpled cheek is considered a mark of beauty, but in reality it is caused by a defect in the tissues which lie under the skin. The dimple is a dent or depression in the skin on a part of the body where the flesh is soft. The tissue under the skin is composed of fibers which help to hold the skin firm. These fibers are not of uniform length, and sometimes there will be a collection of the shorter fibers all in one spot.
